New Criticism. A literary movement that started in the late 1920s and 1930s and originated in reaction to traditional criticism that new critics saw as largely concerned with matters extraneous to the text, e.g., with the biography or psychology of the author or the work's relationship to literary history.

11 Critical Theory in Ecomusicology James Rhys Edwards Critical theory is an endeavor born of crisis. In the historical materialist tradition, which emerged in response to nineteenth-century social crisis, the critical theorist begins by taking account of the material conditions and mode of production that enable society to reproduce itself.
